GIRFEC, what is it?
Getting it right for every child, or GIRFEC, was developed by the Scottish Government and is a way for people for example, teachers, health visitors, police officers, social workers and community workers to work with all children and young people living in Scotland.
This approach to working with children and young people takes account of the UN Convention on the Rights of the Child.

The Named Person will get to know you well and be able to help if there are any concerns with your wellbeing or with any worries or questions you or your family might have.

If concerns or worries remain, the Named Person will help to get the right support, from the right people at the right time.

If you have any worries or are not sure about anything, either in school or at home, you can talk to your Named Person about it.

They will try their best to help you.

The Named Person will work closely to make sure you and your family's views are listened to and you are fully involved in any discussions, decision making or planning that may affect you.

Now you are in secondary school your Named Person will usually be a teacher from the pupil support team.
